Fractional Ownership' of Luxe Homes Catching on implified investment procedures & efficient property management said to be key drivers of this new practice

Faizan Haidar

ew Delhi: Keen to buy into a sprawling Portuguese villa, with its cashew farms or lush, green paddy fields, in South Goa's famed Salsette beach, like the well-heeled Brits do in balmy Algarve? Or, part-own a massive British-era estate in Uttarakhand's Lake District that rivals the Cornish originals in the season of mist and mellow fruitfulness?

With second-home fractional ownership, a highly popular practice in Europe's artier neighbourhoods and the US, gaining currency in India, doing so would need to neither break the bank, nor sacrifice returns on investment.

'Fractional ownership of luxury homes, though relatively novel in India, is a well-accepted concept in developed nations,' said Sharada Gupta, founder and CEO, Voya, which specialises in holiday-home ownership. 'This concept is swiftly gaining popularity in India too, owing to its numerous advantages, such as simplified investment procedures and efficient property management.'

Distributed ownership of its, condos, and villas is nurturing real estate demand in popular vacation destinations such as Goa, Alibaug, Kauli, Malindi, and the southern coffee country.

Property industry executives said the holiday home industry is worth around $2 billion in India, and its size is expected to grow to $10 billion in the next few years.

Fractional ownership currently represents a modest 2% of the holiday home market. But following the emergence of numerous platforms post-Covid, this share is anticipated to climb to 10% as distributed ownership costs about an eighth of outright ownership. There is a notable surge in interest from affluent milieus looking to make investments in these regions.

"The luxury second home not only appreciates in value, diversifying one's investment portfolio beyond traditional avenues like stocks and bonds, but it also provides consistent appreciation and potential profit upon resale," said Dhiman Shah, founder and COO, Isprara, a property consulting firm. City Homes Relative, Yashold, a real estate agent, said, "Typically, buyers witness two types of returns: Yield-driven return on investment (ROI) and capital appreciation. Gross yields typically fall in the 7-10% range, with net yields at 3-5% depending on the specific micro-location."

The extent of capital appreciation, largely hinges on the duration one retains the property, with potential growth ranging from 30-300%. Another key player in the segment, Equity Address, expects to own Rs 400 crore of assets in the next three years from Rs 50 crore of assets now, said Mohit Gupta, co-founder.

After the pandemic boosted demand for holiday properties, many companies providing fractional ownership have come up to assist buyers in owning a luxury home through distributed ownership.

'Fractional ownership is democratising the ownership of holiday homes, bringing the ultra-luxury experience at a fraction of the cost. This concept has done fairly well in the international markets, with platforms offering a well-researched portfolio of properties,"
